Data for Decisions

This practice is proud to be involved in The University of Melbourne's Data for Decisions program that collects anonymous (de-identified) information from patient health records in an ethical and secure way. All data collected is managed and stored by The University of Melbourne in accordance with Federal Privacy Laws.

Data contributed from general practices involved in the Data for Decisions program will only be used for research, teaching and policy purposes to improve the way medical care is delivered and inform the education of future health professionals.

If you would like more information, please ask at the reception for an information brochure or visit our website. If you do not want your data to be collected for the Data for Decisions program, please tell your doctor or the receptionist.
