MELBOURNE

The Long View on COVID-19

Department of Rural Health

Public Webinar Series

What Will 2021 Look Like?

Professor Brett Sutton Victorian Chief Health Officer

The University of Melbourne Department of Rural Health in partnership with the Rotary Club of Ballarat South invites you to a Public Webinar provided by Professor Brett Sutton, the Victorian Chief Health Officer.

Professor Sutton provides expert clinical and scientific advice and leadership on issues impacting public health. He has been instrumental in putting Victoria back on track from the recent second wave and therefore we are now the envy of many countries worldwide.

Professor Sutton is the spokesperson for the Victorian Government on matters related to health protection, including public health incidents and emergencies. He has extensive experience and clinical expertise in public health and communicable diseases gained through emergency medicine and field-based international work, including in Afghanistan and Timor-Leste. He represents Victoria on a number of key national bodies including the AHPPC (Australian Health Protection Principal Committee). He is also Chief Human Biosecurity Officer for Victoria. Professor Sutton has a keen interest in tropical medicine and the incorporation of palliative care practice into humanitarian responses.

Professor Sutton is a Fellow of the Royal Society for Public Health, a Fellow of the Australasian College of Tropical Medicine and a Fellow of the Australasian Faculty of Public Health Medicine (AFPHM). He is also a member of the Faculty of Travel Medicine.

Professor Sutton will share his knowledge on COVID-19 and what 2021 and beyond may look like for Rural and Regional Victoria, as well as lessons that can be learned from Europe and the America following the disastrous second wave of the pandemic occurring in their autumn and winter months.

There will be the opportunity for Q & A at the end of the presentation.
