Clinical Placement Request: Foundation In Translational Clinical Medicine – An MD1 Discovery Subject

As we are preparing for 2024 delivery of MD1 Discovery Subject – Foundations in Translational Clinical Medicine, we would like to call for expressions of interest (EOI) for clinical/research placements for the subject. Foundations in Translational Clinical Medicine is being offered to MD1 students by the Department of Medicine (University of Melbourne) at each hospital and rural site. The subject aim is to explore translational medicine in its broadest context: learn how research translates into patient care and patient care can drive research discoveries. The subject is based on clinical cases and 11 online modules representing diverse specialties that illustrate research methods and frameworks augmented by two brief placements, 4 hours each. This topic is especially designed for students who are considering a career in academic medicine and will bridge to further academic projects in later years.

If you would like to offer to host a supervised placement within your research unit / team during 2024, please complete the online form no later than Friday 19th January 2024.

If you have any questions, please contact DoM-Discovery@unimelb.edu.au

Updated Proposed Enterprise Agreement Available Now

The Vice Chancellor announced in December that bargaining with the National Tertiary Education Union (NTEU) had concluded and the settled negotiated position is reflected in the proposed agreement here. Information sessions to explain the new enterprise agreement and a range of explanatory material will be made available to staff members in the coming weeks.

Authorship Policy (MPF1181) – Roles & Responsibilities

This policy was updated earlier this year, detailing the University's expectations around responsible research authorship, coordinating authors and authorship agreement requirements. A frequently asked questions and authorship agreement template has been developed and both are now available on the Research Gateway to support researchers in meeting these requirements.
